

A photograph of the interior of a church during a service. The ceiling is made of dark wooden beams with decorative carvings. A large, modern chandelier with multiple lit bulbs hangs from the ceiling. The walls are white, and there are several windows with stained glass. A priest in white vestments with a rainbow stole stands at the altar on the right, holding a book. The congregation, consisting of people of various ages, is seated in wooden pews on the left, facing the altar. Some people are holding books or papers.
